

What is Solidarity Lowell?

Solidarity Lowell is a group of community members of Greater Lowell working toward social justice and standing together against hate and discrimination.

We respond to the needs of the community by:

- connecting people
- coordinating actions using appropriate tactics
- collecting and disseminating information related to social justice
- identifying resources
- organizing events
- collaborating on projects with other community organizations
- facilitating education and fostering community dialogue.

Solidarity Lowell is non-partisan; our members have a range of political and philosophical viewpoints and spiritual faiths. While we encourage debate and discussion on key issues, we affirm that we stand unequivocally against hate and discrimination in all its forms, and we work to promote peace, civil liberties, human rights, and social justice.

Postcard Parties

Join us at postcard-writing events every Tuesday from 9:30-11:30am at the Java Room in Chelmsford, and every Thursday from 9-11am at Panera in Westford. We'll be writing to our representatives about issues that matter, as well as to voters about progressive candidates. Topics, addresses, and supplies are provided! For more information, contact hope@solidaritylowell.com.

Demonstrate, Drink, and Discuss

At our monthly visibility event, stand out at the island in front of City Hall in Lowell to protest against the most recent atrocities in the news. Then head to a nearby restaurant for a beverage and/or food for a lively discussion. Bring a sign! For more information, contact aiham@solidaritylowell.com.

Marches, Rallies, and Special Events

We've organized quite a few marches and rallies in and around Lowell, including the Lowell Women's March, a Funeral for Democracy, and the Rally Against Gun Violence in Chelmsford.

Solidarity Lowell has also sponsored or co-sponsored political candidate forums for the City Council race as well as the 3rd Congressional District.

We are your voice about issues that matter at City Council meetings, public listening sessions, and meetings with elected officials.
